

Let Rural Mutual Aid Help Children Grow Up

Helping rural artisan families find local support networks to raise children together and get through busy farming seasons together.

Field Observation

In the Process of Pursuing an Ideal...

How are children cared for?

“When my mom went to volunteer training, I was placed in the community childcare center. As a child, I actually really wanted my mom to be with me...”

— Mingli’s daughter

...My mom basically let me grow freely.

The Real Situation of Rural Families

What rural families face is not merely an income problem, but a structural failure of the care system.

Unfixed working hours

Farm work is concentrated in busy seasons and highly seasonal, making childcare difficult to plan in advance.

Lack of support that balances care and growth

Most existing resources focus on caregiving functions, but rarely provide spaces for companionship, co-learning, and community interaction. Children may struggle to build security and belonging.

Direct conflict between work and parenting

Busy-season farm work often overlaps with children's care needs, forcing families to constantly coordinate between farming and parenting.

Why Narrow from “Couple Relationship” to “Parent–Child Care”?

In early fieldwork, we saw multiple issues intertwined: couple negotiation, migration pressure, unstable income, and insufficient childcare support. With limited resources, we chose the most urgent and actionable entry point.

See Multiple Problems

Couple relationship, income, migration, and parenting are intertwined.

Evaluate Feasibility

Consider urgency, specificity, community-solvability, and our own lived experience.

Focus on Parent–Child Care

Use community mutual aid as the entry point to validate the MVP.

Our Proposal in One Sentence

When busy farming seasons, flexible work hours, and diverse educational philosophies coexist, how can rural families quickly find trustworthy parents with similar values and children of similar ages — and form a co-learning and mutual childcare network?

Can't Find People

Nearby families with children of similar ages are hard to discover.

Unclear Value Fit

Even after finding people, differences in education philosophy create cooperation friction.

No Trust-Building Tools

Even after meeting, there is no mechanism for collaboration and trust-building.

We Are Not Imagining from Scratch

- Using dating-app logic to support rural parenting: finding mutual-aid structures that suit families.
- Vertical matching logic: people with a specific lifestyle are willing to enter a dedicated platform and self-select.
- Firsthand co-learning mutual aid: familiar families forming a summer learning

Dating apps offer a reference point for structured matching and self-selection.

A Parent-Matching Platform Centered on “Child Age × Geographic Distance × Educational Philosophy”

Find People

Same-age children + same area + similar values, enabling precise matching.

Form Groups

Co-learning groups / play groups / busy-season mutual-aid classes, with 3–5 families as a unit.

Coordinate

Rotating schedules, agreement templates, and contact mechanisms make cooperation sustainable.

The screenshot displays the user interface of the parent-matching platform. At the top, a search bar contains the text "孩子年齡 × 距離 × 理念 精準篩選" (Child Age × Distance × Philosophy Precise Filtering). Below the search bar, a sub-header reads: "已為您過濾通過手機實名驗證之誠實互助家庭。點擊條件可立即重組推薦名單，展示核心搜尋引擎效果。" (We have filtered families that have passed mobile real-name verification. Clicking the conditions can immediately reorganize the recommended list, showing the core search engine effect.)

On the left side, there are three filter categories with dropdown menus:

- 孩子年齡層 (Child Age Group): 3 - 5 歲 (幼兒幼童) (3 - 5 years (Young children))
- 可接受移動半徑 (Acceptable moving radius): 車程 15 分鐘內 (同鄉鎮) (Within 15 minutes driving (Same hometown))
- 教育理念偏好 (Educational philosophy preference): 華德福 / 森林教育偏好 (Waldorf / Forest education preference)

Below the filters is a green button labeled "執行智慧條件搜尋" (Execute smart condition search).

On the right side, two family profiles are displayed:

旗山 冠廷家 (Qishan Guanting Family): 華德福偏好 (Waldorf preference), 車程 10 分鐘 (10 minutes driving).
孩子檔案: 2021年生 (5歲) / 台語及中文 / 輕微蠶豆症(不能樟腦) (Child profile: Born in 2021 (5 years old) / Taiwanese and Chinese / Mild蚕豆症 (cannot use naphthalene)).
工作型態: 返鄉草生咖啡職人 (時間彈性) (Work style: Returning home grass life coffee worker (flexible time)).
家庭成員: 夫妻同住, 無長輩同住 (Family members: Couple living together, no elders living together).
可用時案: 每週三下午、週末全天 (Available time: Every Wednesday afternoon, weekends all day).

Why This Design?

1 Co-Learn First, Mutual Childcare Later

Build familiarity and trust first, then move toward mutual childcare to reduce safety concerns.

2 Small-Group Principle

Three to five families are more likely to form stable and sustainable relationships.

3 Make Values Clear Upfront

Label differences such as Waldorf, mainstream schooling, and forest education to reduce cooperation friction.

A Three-Layer Mechanism: Not Just Idealistic — Safe and Reassuring

1 Basic Verification

Phone number, real name, location, and family profile ensure basic authenticity.

2 Community Verification

Referral sources, mutual consent to join, and co-learning before mutual childcare.

3 Collaboration Verification

Group agreements, duty records, and exit mechanisms make responsibilities traceable.

These three layers directly answer: “How can this be done without becoming risky?” We have risk awareness, not an idealized platform.

Validate the Need

We are not looking for daycare services for rural families.
We help them find local support networks to raise children together and get through busy farming seasons together.

One-sentence claim

Expected outcomes — qualitative

- Reduce care gaps during busy farming periods
- Increase parent mutual aid and the quality of companionship
- Improve the likelihood that rural families can stay and balance work with life

Expected outcomes — quantitative

- Group formation rate
- Retention rate
- Mutual-aid rate

We believe,

a community's most precious inheritance is not only the harvest
from the land,
but also how the next generation grows up on this land.

Let rural mutual aid help children grow up.
